

Report on the distribution of direct aids to agricultural producers (financial year 2013)

Every year, the Commission publishes the breakdown of direct payments by Member State and size of payment. Figures are now available for the financial year 2013 and are analysed in this report.

Summary

- Direct payments are a fundamental part of the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP). In financial year 2013, direct payments represented 71% of the whole CAP expenditure; 93% of them were decoupled.
- Since 2005:
 - Member States that joined the EU in 2004 and 2007 have been progressively increasing their levels of direct payments according to a scheduled increment (phasing-in). The level of EU direct payments in those Member States is progressively increasing from 25% of EU-15 level in 2004 (2007 for Bulgaria and Romania) to 100% in the 2014 budget year (2017 for Bulgaria and Romania).
 - Structural adjustments in the agricultural holdings of the EU have reduced the number of farms; as a result, the number of beneficiaries of direct payments has also decreased (-12% in the EU-15, -7% in the EU-N10, -4% in BG+RO since 2008).
 - The combination of these two factors has resulted in a smaller share of beneficiaries receiving low amounts of direct payments and thus in a higher average amount per beneficiary, particularly in the Member States which joined the EU in 2004 and 2007.
- Nonetheless, direct payments are not equally distributed among beneficiaries in each Member State, mainly because the structure of the payments depends largely on the structure of agricultural holdings. Thus the evolution of the payments also reflects changes in farm structure. Important differences can still be observed between groups of countries and between Member States¹.
- In December 2013, new rules for direct payments to farmers were adopted for the period 2014-2020². With this reform, direct payments will be distributed in a fairer way between Member States, between regions and between farmers, with a further shift away from 'historical references'.

¹ This report includes an analysis per groups of countries for the financial year 2013 and for the period 2005-2013. Graphs for each Member State, covering both direct payments and farm structure, are included in the annex.

1. Historical development of the direct payments system

In the first decades of the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP), public support to agricultural producers was mainly provided via guaranteed prices, border protection and market intervention. Over the late 70s and 80s, this policy led to excessive public stocks, an increase in expenditure and international friction with the EU's main trading partners. A radical reform of the CAP was adopted in 1992, which gradually reduced EU support prices for the main agricultural products (such as grains and beef) and compensated farmers for the consequent revenue loss in the form of direct payments. With this instrument, producers received a direct support based on their historical levels of production (areas, yields, number of animals). This change in the support of the agricultural sector was deepened in the Agenda 2000 reform, through the introduction of additional price cuts and the increase in direct payments expenditure. The Agenda 2000 reform was introduced progressively during the period 2000-2002. In 2002, the support regime for sheep and goats was also adjusted.

A further far-reaching reform was decided in 2003 and 2004, with progressive implementation as from 2005. Several sectors were reformed (milk, rice, cereals, durum wheat, dried fodder and nuts) and some fundamental changes concerning direct payments were introduced. In particular, direct payments were largely decoupled from production, even if the possibility existed to keep part of the payments linked to specific production. With the view to strengthening the EU's rural development policy, a mechanism of compulsory 'modulation' was introduced. It consisted in a reduction of direct payments (by 10% in the 2012 application year) with the transfer of the corresponding funds to rural development. Most of these changes started taking effect from 2005 onwards.

With the implementation of the reform in 2005-2007, parallel market and policy developments indicated a rapidly changing environment facing EU agriculture. These developments, together with the experience gained from implementation, indicated the need for CAP adjustments which could not have been foreseen when the 2003 reform was approved. The aims of the 2008 Health Check were therefore to: (1) assess the experience from the implementation of the Single Payment Scheme and introduce adjustments to further simplify and increase the effectiveness of the policy; and (2) introduce adjustments to the CAP in order to allow it to respond to market opportunities and to face new challenges related to energy, water management and climate change. Among other changes, the Health Check introduced an increase of the transfers to rural development measures from 2010 via some adjustments in the 'modulation'. This has been defined as 'progressive modulation'.

2. The direct payments system in 2013

Rules applicable for the financial year 2013 for the direct payments system were established by Council Regulation (EC) No 73/2009, which replaced Council Regulation (EC) No 1782/2003. Decoupled direct payments, introduced by the 2003 Reform, represent the majority of the payments.

In the EU-15 countries plus Malta and Slovenia, decoupled direct payments are realised through the Single Payment Scheme (SPS). This scheme can be implemented in various ways. The main difference lies in whether the SPS is based on the direct payments that individual farmers received in the historical reference period, thus producing different levels of SPS for each farmer, or whether all payments are averaged out over a state or region. With the latter (regional) model, some farmers may benefit of direct payments they were not entitled to in the previous period, increasing the number of beneficiaries of direct payments (but in general at a low level of support). A hybrid model has been implemented in some Members States combining historical references and regionalisation.

To receive direct payments, beneficiaries must be in possession of payment entitlements. These payment entitlements were allocated to the farmers during the first year of application of the scheme and may be transferred (by sale or lease) to other farmers in the following years.

In most of the Member States that joined the EU in 2004 (EU-N10) and 2007 (Bulgaria and Romania, BG+RO) except in Malta and Slovenia, direct payments have been phased in through a transitional system named the Single Area Payment Scheme (SAPS), which broadly corresponds to a flat rate area-based payment. The level of EU direct payments in those Member States is progressively increasing from 25% of EU-15 level in 2004 (2007 for Bulgaria and Romania) to 100% in the 2014 budget year (2017 for Bulgaria and Romania). In order to increase the overall direct support level above the phasing-in level, these Member States have the possibility to apply a Complementary National Direct Payment.

In addition to the SPS and SAPS, other coupled schemes that were still in place at the time of the 2003 and 2008 reforms have now been decoupled, except for the suckler cows, sheep and goat and cotton schemes which may remain coupled.

Due to the fact that the current levels of direct payments in all EU Member States are based on historic production and support references, they are not uniform within the EU but differ according to the product orientation and productivity differences between Member States during the historic reference period. As a result, the average value of direct payments per hectare differs between Member States and between farmers (depending on the direct payment model applied in a Member State).

3. Importance of direct payments within the CAP

Before the implementation of Agenda 2000 (for instance in financial year 2000, reflecting payments for the year 1999) direct payments reached EUR 25.5 billion, representing 61% of total CAP expenditure. Market measures and rural development accounted for 26% and 13% of the total CAP, respectively.

In financial year 2005, the first year of implementation of the 2003 reform in some Member States, both direct payments and rural development expenditure had increased their share, to the detriment of market measures, which became less important in the whole CAP. That year, direct payments reached EUR 33.7 billion (65% of the total), and only 4% of them were decoupled.

In financial year 2013, direct payments reached EUR 41.7 billion and represented 71% of the whole CAP; 93% of them were already decoupled.

Overall expenditure for direct payments increased by EUR 778.2 million between 2012 and 2013 financial years (+1.9%), mainly due to the increase of payments in the EU-N12 (+14%), owing to the scheduled increments of such payments in those Member States³.

4. Distribution of direct payments between Member States

As national envelopes were based on historical levels of production, the distribution of direct payments between Member States broadly reflects the distribution of agricultural area and livestock units between them (see Graph 2).

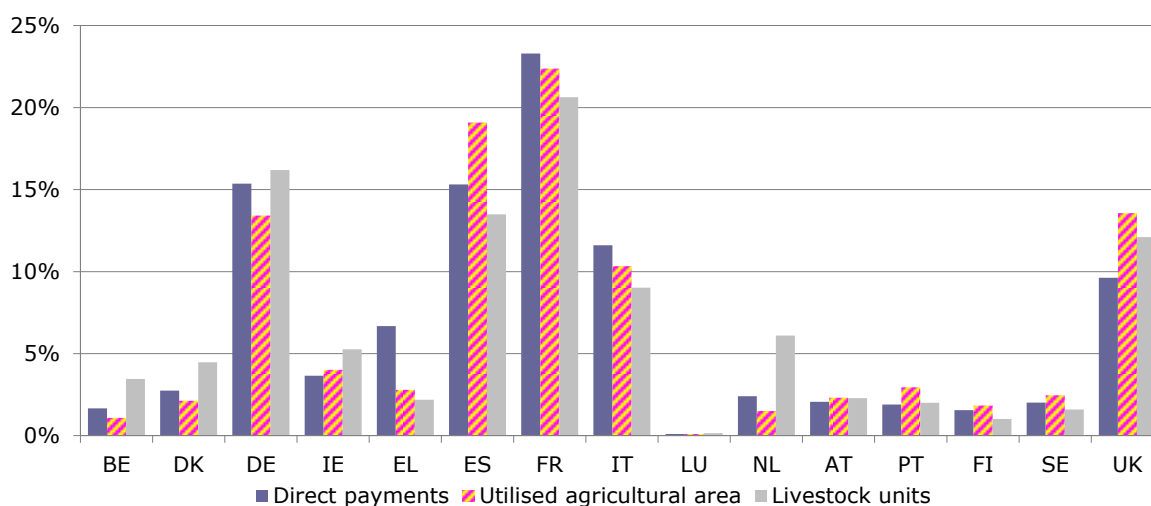

However, due to the already mentioned phasing-in of payments in those Member States, the share of the EU-N12 in total direct payments has gradually increased (from 16% in the financial year 2012 to 18% in the financial year 2013) and will continue to increase in the coming years.

As the different level of payments (90% of the full amount for the EU-N10, 60% for Bulgaria and Romania) still makes the comparison between the 27 Member States difficult for the 2013 financial year, data for the EU-15 and the EU-N12 countries are presented separately in Graphs 3a and 3b. These graphs show how, in each group of countries, the Member States with higher shares of utilised agricultural area and/or livestock units receive higher amounts of direct payments.

Graph 3b Distribution of direct payments (2013 financial year), utilised agricultural area and livestock units (2010 Farm Structure Survey) between the EU-N12 countries (EU-N12=100%)

5. Distribution of direct payments between beneficiaries

Direct payments are not equally distributed among beneficiaries in the European Union: on average, 80% of the beneficiaries (88% for Bulgaria and Romania) receive around 20% of the payments (with important differences among Member States, as reflected in the graphs in the Annex). Graph 4 shows the distribution of direct payments between beneficiaries in each group of countries.

The curve of the EU-N10 countries has moved progressively closer to the curve of the EU-15⁴, which means that both the percentage of beneficiaries receiving smaller amounts and the percentage of direct payments distributed among them have been reduced, even though, as a result of the phasing-in, the total amount is now much higher.

A similar movement could be expected for Bulgaria and Romania in the coming years, although due to the high number of small farms in those countries more time will be needed for this change to occur.

Table 1 summarizes some relevant data for the analysis of the evolution of beneficiaries and payments between the financial years 2005 (2008 for BG+RO) and 2013.

A first look at this information shows that EU averages are not always meaningful as they don't reflect the evolution that has occurred over the last years in individual Member States; indeed, total EU averages are strongly influenced by the effect of the 2007 enlargement, which brought a huge number of small farms into the EU (Bulgaria and Romania comprise 51% of small farms in the EU-27⁵). Therefore, an analysis by groups of countries is necessary.

⁵ There is no common definition for 'small farm' in the EU. In this report, farms with a standard output of EUR 4 000 or less are considered 'small farms' (see Table 2 on page 8).

Although the total number of beneficiaries in the whole EU increased by almost 10% due to the 2007 accession, it has actually decreased since 2005 (2008 for BG+RO) in each group of countries (-12% in the EU-15, -7% in the EU-N10, -4% in BG+RO). This reduction in the number of beneficiaries (linked to structural adjustments that both reduce the number of farms and increase their size), together with the increasing amounts received by the EU-N12 countries, has resulted in a smaller share of beneficiaries receiving low amounts of direct payments and thus in a higher average amount per beneficiary.

In 2013 the average amount of direct payments per beneficiary was still much higher in the EU-15 than in the other countries; but it only grew by 11% since 2008 (due to a reduction in the number of beneficiaries), compared to an increase of 139% in the EU-N10 and 180% in BG+RO over the same period (mainly due to the phasing-in of the direct payments in those Member States).

With the continuation of farm restructuring and the increasing amounts that EU-N12 countries will receive until the end of the current period, plus the continuation of the reforms affecting the direct payment system in the coming years, as explained in Chapter 6, the average amount of direct payments per beneficiary in the EU-N12 should continue to increase, gradually reducing the differences with EU-15 Member States.

On the basis of the changes observed in Table 1, Graphs 5 and 6 (see next page) show, respectively, the evolution of the distribution of beneficiaries and payments in 2005 (2008 for BG+RO) and 2013, and allow to graphically observe the developments described for each group of countries and for each variable⁶.

Graph 6 Evolution of the distribution of direct payments by amount of direct payments received (in EUR), 2005 (2008) and 2013 financial years

The changes observed in the distribution of direct payments between beneficiaries are not only the result of structural changes in the EU farms but also the result of policy decisions. Indeed, distribution of direct payments between small and large farms has been regularly questioned, not least from the point of view of social cohesion. It should be remembered that the major part of the direct payments was established as a compensation for revenue losses due to several support price reductions. A large farm producing more than a small farm encountered a more severe revenue loss and therefore received a higher compensation than a small farm. However, the direct payments are progressively losing their compensatory character and have increasingly become a support ensuring a certain farm income stability and, in combination with cross-compliance, promoting sustainable farming activity.

This is why some concerns with the way direct payments are distributed across agricultural producers and Member States have been expressed on many occasions, and the Commission has proposed mechanisms to decrease or to limit the amount of direct payments to the largest beneficiaries with a view to making the distribution of direct support fairer. With the Health Check reform it was decided to increase the compulsory modulation that transfers a percentage of the payments to rural development and to introduce an additional progressive modulation affecting only beneficiaries receiving larger amounts (above the threshold of EUR 300 000), according to the idea that they should contribute more to meet the new challenges confronting the agricultural sector. One of the main objectives of the new CAP after 2013 is to reduce the differences in the levels of aid per hectare between Member States, between regions and between farmers: historical references currently used to allocate payments in some Member States will be progressively aligned, and as a result divergences in the levels of aid per hectare within a given Member State or region will be reduced.

Graphs and data analysed in this report confirm that payments made to 'medium sized' beneficiaries in the EU-15 and EU-N10 countries and to 'big' beneficiaries in BG+RO, are gradually increasing, a change largely due to structural changes in the farms (fewer and bigger farms). But the structure of agricultural holdings still differs between countries, and its evolution will continue to play a role on how direct payments are distributed among beneficiaries. To illustrate this, Graph 7 and Table 2 present, for each group of Member States, the most recent data on farm structures; comparing this with Graphs 5 and 6 also helps to understand why the distribution of direct payments between beneficiaries is still so different across Member States and how it could evolve in the future.

6. Moving towards fairer, greener and more targeted direct support to farmers

In December 2013, new rules for direct payments to farmers were adopted for the period 2014-2020⁷ (mainly with effect from 2015). The new CAP will provide much greater flexibility to Member States so that direct payments are distributed more fairly, are 'greener' to promote sustainability and to combat climate change, and are better targeted for example towards young farmers, small farmers or farmers in areas with natural constraints.

Provisions addressing the issue of a fairer distribution of direct aids per hectare to farmers are thus a key element of the new system. But how is this fairer distribution between Member States, between regions and between farmers to be achieved?

First, the distribution of the CAP budget will ensure that the average direct aid per hectare will not be lower than EUR 196 in any Member State by 2019, which represents roughly 75% of the EU average.

Second, historical references currently used to allocate payments in some Member States will be progressively removed, and as a result divergences in the levels of aid per hectare within a given Member State or region will be reduced (internal convergence):

- Those Member States that currently maintain allocations based on historic references must move towards similar levels of payment per hectare. They may choose from different options: to take a national approach, or a regional approach (based on administrative or agronomic criteria); to achieve a regional/national rate by 2019, or to ensure that those farms getting less than 90% of the regional/national average rate see a gradual increase – with the additional guarantee that every farmer reaches a minimum payment of 60% of the regional/national average by 2019. The amounts available to farmers receiving more than the regional/national average will be adjusted proportionally, with an option for Member States to limit any 'losses' to 30%.

- Member States will be able to increase support for small and medium-sized farms by allocating higher levels of aid for the first 30 hectares (or up to the average farm size if higher) of a holding. This will have a significant redistributive effect.
- Member States applying the Single Area Payments Scheme (SAPS) – a single payment per hectare – may extend the use of this system until 2020.

Third, only farmers currently active may benefit from income-support schemes. A new negative list of professional business activities which should be excluded from receiving direct payment will be mandatory.

The new system will also ensure that 30% of the national envelopes for direct payments will be conditional upon respect of agricultural practices beneficial for the climate and the environment (crop diversification, maintaining existing permanent grassland and having ecological focus areas on the agricultural areas). This green payment can be provided as a flat rate or in proportion of the basic payment to farmers.

Finally, other provisions included in the new system, such as the support for young farmers, the simplified aid scheme for small farmers or the aid for areas with natural constraints, will help Member States enhance support where it is most needed, and could help to achieve a better distribution of direct support to farmers. Implementation will start from 2015 onwards.

Direct payments help to keep farming in place throughout the EU territory by supporting and stabilising farmers' income, thus stimulating economic activity, indirectly helping to support growth and jobs and contributing to the vitality of rural areas.

Methodology

The figures published in this report refer to the financial year 2013. Some analyses on the evolution of direct payments between 2005 and 2013 financial years, i.e. during the period of full implementation of the 2003 CAP reform and the years of the Health Check implementation, are also included.

It should be stressed that direct payments reported in this note only cover the support provided from the EU budget and therefore do not cover the Complementary National Direct Payments allowed in the Member States that joined the EU more recently.

It is advised to carefully consider limitations and comments as described in Annex 1, point 3, of the *Indicative figures on the distribution of direct aid to farmers*⁸, when consulting and interpreting the data on the distribution of direct payments.

ANNEX 1
INDICATIVE FIGURES
ON THE DISTRIBUTION OF AID, BY SIZE-CLASS OF AID, RECEIVED IN THE CONTEXT OF DIRECT AID PAID TO THE PRODUCERS ACCORDING TO COUNCIL REGULATION (EC) No 1782/2003 AND
COUNCIL REGULATION (EC) No 73/2009

(FINANCIAL YEAR 2013)

1. SOURCE OF THE INFORMATION

Pursuant to the 'X-table' regulation, the Commission receives from the Member States, on an annual basis, data on the payments made to the beneficiaries of the European Agricultural Guarantee Fund (EAGF) for further use in the context of the audit procedures as well as for monitoring and forecasting purposes.

2. SCOPE OF THE DISTRIBUTION FIGURES (EU27)

The attached figures cover the expenditure paid as direct aid according to Regulations No 1782/2003 and No 73/2009 for financial year 2013 and are based on the total amounts aggregated by every individual beneficiary identification code ('unique identifier').

3. LIMITATIONS AND COMMENTS

3.1. While in general data quality is adequate for use in the audit activity, care must be exercised over use of the data for other, analytical purposes. The requirement for a 'unique identifier' came into effect on 1 January 2003 following the introduction of the new IACS Implementing Regulation¹. Despite the Member States' continuous efforts, small inconsistencies in the application of the 'unique identifier' cannot be totally excluded. The attached tables therefore present "indicative" and not totally precise figures.

3.2. The Member States have been invited to confirm the order of magnitude of the draft 2013 figures upon which no substantial differences were notified.

3.3. Figures are given according to the following sub-division: "All direct payments", "Decoupled direct payments" and "Coupled direct payments".

3.4. Numbers of beneficiaries less than 10 have been made invisible.

3.5. All Member States provided their data in EUR.
